No Real Opposition Was Found by Wood

A strong faith that Congress will give Hawaii what she asks in the way of appropriations for Pearl Harbor and for defenses was expressed by Secretary Wood at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon. Here he submitted a lengthy report outlining in detail the work done by him during his trip to Washington, parts of which follow:

On Monday, December 9th, I presented my letter of introduction from Admiral Veto to Captain Barnett, formerly secretary of the Naval Board, who had just been given the position of superintendent of the Naval Observatory. I found in Captain Barnett a warm friend of Hawaii and a zealous advocate of the early improvement of Pearl Harbor.

The same afternoon, I met Captain Pillsbury, the new secretary of the Naval Board, at his office in the Mills building. One meeting led to another, the Captain being most anxious to fully inform himself as to Pearl Harbor and the island of Oahu generally.

Upon assuming the duties of his new office, I do not think that Captain Pillsbury was specially interested in Hawaii, but being a close student of what Army and Navy men now consider one of the gravest of problems—the defense of the Pacific—it was not long before this able man became deeply interested in the plans for the improvement of Pearl Harbor and no member of the Naval Board took a deeper interest in the matter. The rooms of the Naval Board were always open to your representative, and I had the pleasure of meeting Admiral Dewey and other prominent Naval officers many times. The Admiral is an earnest advocate of the immediate improvement of Pearl Harbor, believing the work to be of vital importance to the nation.

At the first convenient opportunity, I called upon Secretary Metcalf, who had been interested in the improvement of Pearl Harbor legislation. Presuming on an acquaintance of several years standing, I told the Secretary the object of my mission and asked if the work the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce was doing would be considered objectionable by the Department. Mr. Metcalf at once replied, "No, on the contrary, we will welcome your assistance, for in our opinion the improvements planned for Pearl Harbor should be undertaken at once and pushed to completion, not because there is any likelihood of war but because the trend of affairs in the Pacific demands that the work be done."

Upon receipt of the cablegram from President Morgan, stating that the Chamber stood ready to make the borings necessary to determine the cost of the improvement of the entrance to Pearl Harbor, I immediately called upon Admiral Dewey, who, after consultation with the members of the Naval Board, expressed approval of the plan and commended in the warmest terms of praise the action of our Chamber of Commerce in offering to do what they could not attempt without a special Act of Congress.

I also took the cablegram to General MacKenzie, Chief of Engineers, who expressed the greatest pleasure possible at the offer. The information was badly needed, he said, yet as was the case with the Navy Department, there was no fund at his command to obtain it.

I do not believe that the Chamber ever made a better investment than the expenditure at Pearl Harbor. I called, by appointment, upon President Roosevelt, who expressed the greatest interest in Pearl Harbor matters, spoke of the many letters he had received from different Chambers of Commerce all over the country, urging favorable legislation and expressed his appreciation of what he termed the right conception of existing conditions shown. It was indeed this action of friendly Chambers of Commerce that induced the President to write that three and a half page letter to different Senators and Congressmen in regard to the matter, one of the strongest arguments in favor of the development of Pearl Harbor that has ever been written.

President Roosevelt said to a representative of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce: "I am deeply interested in San Diego harbor and favor its improvement, but Pearl Harbor first, and I want to express to you my appreciation of the broad spirit displayed by the San Diego Chamber of Commerce in regard to the matter, as is evidenced by their letter of recent date now on my desk."

We also know that the President, realizing keenly the defenseless condition of the Western Coast of the United States, the great need of providing for the protection of the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal, the safe guarding of our commerce, which can only be assured by the establishment of an adequate Naval Station at Pearl Harbor and the rendering of the island of Oahu impregnable to attack, never loses an opportunity to speak of these matters to visiting Senators and Congressmen, and is apparently pleased to be able to say that the leading commercial bodies of the country

East, as well as West, are strongly in favor of the movement.

I think it can be safely said that there is no opposition at Washington to the plans for the improvement of Pearl Harbor. Some Congressmen, it is true, may not fully grasp the situation, and others, as a matter of policy, may deem it unwise to authorize any such expenditure at the present time, but I believe that the bills, reported by the House Committee on Naval Affairs, will be given right of way by the Speaker and that they will pass by a strong non-partisan vote, which will mean the ultimate expenditure of many millions of dollars in and around Oahu, and in addition to doubling the accommodations at Fort Shafter, already provided for. There will be a large artillery post on the Honolulu side of the entrance to Pearl Harbor and a regiment, if not two regiments, of troops, located on the Government reservation at Lihuehula, the many advantages of this exceptionally fine location being fully appreciated by General Bell, chief of staff. Thus will be ushered in a new era in the history of Hawaii.

Aside from hearing the report of Secretary Wood, there was very little doing at the meeting. The Pacific Mail proposal was taken up again by L. A. Thurston. F. L. Waldron, one of the committee on the proposal, stated that he had seen the agents of the Pacific Mail here, who said that they have communicated with the main office about the matter. Until further information was received nothing could be done.

Four Ships May Win

PRESIDENT'S BATTLESHIP PROGRAM IS GAINING FRIENDS

Washington, March 10.—It is probable that the administration program for four battleships will be adopted, and that the recommendation of the House Naval Committee for eight submarines will be rescinded.

It was a great blow to the President when the House Committee cut the naval bill to two battleships and eight submarines. The disclosures of graft in connection with the General Electric Boat Company, the aggressive fight being made by Representative Lilley, and the denouncement as to the money paid to various interests to favor submarines as against battleships, has caused a revulsion of feeling.

After talking with the President today, Representative Hobson said:

"I am confident the House will vote for four battleships. While the committee formerly recommended only two, the majority of the members really desire four. They were held down by warnings from certain sources that there must be retrenchment. 'I expect to see at least sixty Democratic votes for four battleships, and the only Republicans who will vote against this number are those well known as political enemies of the President and opposing everything he wants, whether it relates to trusts or the navy.'"

Andrew Carnegie and R. Fulton Cutting of New York headed a petition presented in the House today by Representative Sulzer of New York protesting against the expenditure by the United States of $60,000,000 for the construction of battleships.

A RELIABLE REMEDY FOR THE Whisky and Beer Habit

Very few men become drunkards because they like liquor. It is frequently the moderate drinker, who before he realizes his condition, has become a drunkard. The nervous system, having become accustomed to stimulants, is unable to do the same amount of quality of work without liquor, hence the victim drinks more and more. This is a state of disease and should be treated by Orin. It destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink is not missed. There is no loss of time or detention from work when it is used.

Orin is prepared in two forms: No. 1, the secret remedy which can be used in food or drink without the knowledge of the patient; No. 2 for those who will take the remedy of their own free will. Both forms are guaranteed. A registered guarantee in every box.

Treatise on how to cure drunkenness free on request. The Orin Co., Washington, D. C. The price of either form is $1 a box, making the cost of the complete cure less than one-tenth what it is usually charged at sanitariums, with a guarantee that the expense will be nothing unless a cure is gained. Mail orders filled in plain sealed packages on receipt of price.

Orin is for sale by Honolulu Drug Co., Ltd.

Schmitz Out, Was Cheered

FORMER MAYOR SEEMS TO FEEL THAT HE IS STILL POPULAR

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 11. Former Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz walked out into the sunshine from the Criminal Court building yesterday practically a free man.

For the first time since last June he put his foot on the sidewalk without the shadow of a guard at his side. For the first time in nine months he was free to go where he desired unrestricted.

At the entrance to the Criminal Court building an auto was waiting. Near it for a minute or two after he had regained his liberty, Schmitz stood on the sidewalk accepting the congratulations of his friends and attorneys. From where he stood he could see the picturesque ruin of the City Hall over which he had ruled before his downfall.

Cheered by City Employees

Over in that direction the news of the former Mayor's liberation had leaped as if by magic. Employees of the city and men who had known the Mayor when he was a power stood about the pile of ruins and at the doors of the wooden shacks clustered about its base in which some of the business of the city is now done. They were waiting for a glimpse of the man who had been Mayor. Nine months almost he had been in prison and few of them had seen his face. But they remembered, and as the auto carrying Schmitz flashed past they waved their hats, saluted and sometimes cheered.

Schmitz took it as an ovation, a sort of little triumph, and grinned all the way to his home on McAllister street, where his wife threw herself into his arms.

Schmitz was admitted to bail in a sum that would ransom a king. T. H. Williams and Wm. J. Dingee are his sureties.

Today Schmitz is again the master of his own movements. If he desired to go to his lawyers' offices it is not necessary for him to secure the permission of the court. If he should desire to go to the theater he can do so without being unceremoniously brought back to the insular prison at Ingleside.

It is true forty-three indictments still hang over his head, but four of these are charges of extortion similar to the one dismissed yesterday, and will be wiped from the records of the court as soon as they appear upon the calendar.
